

my legislation, I resent the devil out of people going by and saying, what are we doing, what are we doing. It scares me.

PRESIDENT: Senator Moylan.

SENATOR MOYLAN: Mr. President, I also hesitate to disagree with Senator Marvel. However, I have a very congenial district up there. They never have any unusual requests to speak of but that is one complaint I have had from my constituents that they come down here and they have no way of contacting me on the floor. And the majority of constituents that come down cannot or do not know the plan of the Capitol. They cannot find the offices too easily and the logical thing to do is to contact me on the floor. So I believe that we should open this up for the convenience of the constituents that come down here and would like to let us know that they are here.

PRESIDENT: Senator DeCamp, do you want to close debate on this matter?

SENATOR DeCAMP: Yes, Mr. President, I thought this would be a relatively easy proposal. The older members know exactly what I am talking about because they had the experience of the note system, as Senator Lewis mentioned, and the system that formed after that which was pretty much chaos. A senator would go back to see somebody and fourteen people would contact him and want him to come in and deliver messages. That was a lack of decorum. So what this is is an attempt to reinstate a system that worked very well in the past and that system was simple. When one of the people from your district, let's say you are Senator Venditte, and you have a couple of people from your area come down to visit the Legislature or they are down shopping in Lincoln and they want to stop in and say hello to their senator or something, the procedure is simple. They sign a note, turn it over to the Sergeant at Arms. The Sergeant at Arms walks down, lays it on the senator's desk. He doesn't have to bang him on the head or anything else. You don't have to have other senators running over and hassling him. He simply lays it on his desk. The senator can read immediately and see so-and-so is out there in the rotunda, would like to see me, and he knows. That is decorum when you know exactly what is going on. You have a system that creates a minimum of chaos. It worked in the past. I think we should reinstate it.

PRESIDENT: The question is the adoption of the motion by Senator DeCamp. Record your vote. Have you all voted? Record.

CLERK: 25 ayes, 17 nays.

PRESIDENT: Motion carries.

CLERK: Mr. President, some new bills to introduce. LB 131 - Title read; LB 132 - Title read; LB 133 - Title read; LB 134 - Title read; LB 135 - Title read. Mr. President, your committee on Appropriations gives notice that they will meet on 9 o'clock, Friday, January 7th in Room 1003. Signed Senator Warner, Chairman. Mr. President, your committee on Constitutional Revision and Recreation gives